"Slick" and "Shorty," ring-leaders of a gang of abduction bandits who have made the last two weeks a series of nightmares for Atlanta motorists, Wednesday night continued their reign of terror when they seized a taxicab driver while serving as his passengers and later, after robbing the driver and leaving him bound hand and foot in the bitter cold, abandoned the cab to hold up and rob a lone motorist on Capitol avenue.

The latest exploits of "Slick" and "Shorty" featured a day in which five other persons were taken for "rides" by criminals, in one case the abductors apparently aiming at a ransom kidnapping only to release their victim, a 13-year-old boy, after questioning him at length regarding the financial resources of his family.

EMPEROR AND EMPRESS OF MANCHUKUO.

By JAMES A. MILLS. (Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press.) HSIANKING, (Changchun), Manchukuo, March 1.—(Thursday)—A new empire was ceremonially created today in the ancient domain of the Manchus with the enthronement of young Henry Pu-yi, the last of his dynastic line.

Clad in gorgeous ceremonial robes of silks in ancient pattern he led to the imperial palace at 8 a. m., beginning ceremonies which made him Emperor Kang Teh of the Japanese-advantaged Manchurian empire, which henceforth will be known as "Ta Manchou Li Kuo."

The emperor's wife, Yuen Hua, did not participate in the ceremonies owing to delicate health, but the installation of her 28-year-old imperial consort as ruler of the world's newest empire automatically raised her to the dignity of queenhood.

Shortly after 10 o'clock the ceremonies had been completed and the booming of 101 guns proclaimed to the assembled multitudes in the capital the establishment of a new regime.

As an infant of less than three years, Pu-yi was called from his toys to sit upon the gorgeous dragon throne of the celestial empire at Peiping, only to be evicted from it three years later when China became a republic.

Today, he becomes ruler of 30,000,000 people under the military protection of the Japanese.

The requirement of the Fletcher-Rayburn bill that customers post 60 per cent cash margin, with the option of receiving credit to the extent of 40 per cent of the lowest price the security purchased had reached in three years, Whitney said, would result in closing the exchange.

"The margin requirement in the bill is no margin requirement at all," Whitney said. "A 150 per cent margin requirement (as he interpreted the bill) prohibits the margin requirement and will eliminate all speculation from the stock market. This follows the result that the stock market will be left to the whims of the market and there will be no booms and panics."

Whitney's colleague, Gay, emphatically disputed the constitutionality of the measure, stating that the constitution established a series of court decisions to support his view and asserted that "to say the use of the instrumentality of communication constitutes interstate commerce which the bill restricts is the right of congress to regulate the exchanges is begging the question."

Whitney's brief statement summarized the voluminous analysis of the bill which he presented to the house committee last week. His 10-minute appearance before the senate committee today was in sharp contrast with the day and a half he spent presenting objections to the measure at the other end of the capitol.

"The pending bill, as I read it, has three main purposes," he said in a voice grown somewhat hoarse. "First, it establishes rigid laws to govern exchanges and vests in the federal trade commission the power not only to regulate but actually to administer their business."

"Second, it seeks to restrict and control the credit system."

"Third, it seeks to vest in the federal trade commission the control of corporations regardless of whether they are engaged in interstate commerce."

"The chief executive function of the bill is to establish a series of court decisions to support his view and asserted that "to say the use of the instrumentality of communication constitutes interstate commerce which the bill restricts is the right of congress to regulate the exchanges is begging the question."

Talmadge Reaction Awaited To Tax Returns of Utilities

Companies Opposing Rate Cuts Expected to Be Dealt With Harshly; Today Is Tax Deadline.

Governor Eugene Talmadge reaches another cross-roads today in his fight for lower utility rates in Georgia.

The governor has made it clear time and again that utilities who oppose rate cuts in the courts will be dealt with through the comptroller-general's office when it comes time to make their tax returns and although he hasn't said so, he has indicated by inference that those utilities which have accepted the rate cuts will not be dealt with harshly regarding taxation. Low taxes and low utility rates is the chief executive's slogan.

Today, March 1, is the final day for the filing of tax returns by utilities.

Although no formal announcement has come from Comptroller-General William B. Harrison, it is known that a number of the companies operating in the state have filed their returns. The rest are expected to file today.

Under the law the comptroller-general has 20 days in which to accept or reject the valuations filed by the utilities. If he rejects them they go to arbitration. If the arbitrators fail to reach an agreement the governor can step in and name his own arbitrators.

Interest in Southern Bell.
Chief interest centers about the Southern Bell Telephone Company and the independent telephone companies who have cases in the federal courts growing out of reductions ordered by the public service commission. The Southern Bell's application for an order enjoining the rate cut which went into effect in January was denied by the federal court, but notice of an appeal was filed and the court ordered that the entire case be heard by a master in chancery, Judge E. Marvin Underwood was to have named the master. The appointment has yet to be announced.

The independent telephone companies obtained injunctions and are now obtaining the same rates they did last year. These companies are the Thomson, Consolidated, Dalton, Douglas, Chatworth, Central, Southern and Georgia Continental.

What will be done about the telephone companies remains to be seen. The Southern Bell previously has returned its properties for rate purposes at more than $50,000,000 and for tax-

Ruling Bars Troop Use To Halt Arkansas Races

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Feb. 28. (AP)—Governor F. Tamm was informed in an opinion from Attorney-General

Woodward today that the chief executive had no authority to declare martial law or to use the state's military forces to enforce the criminal laws except upon the request of the local civil authorities.

Although the purpose of the governor's request for the opinion was not stated in his letter or in the opinion itself, Governor F. Tamm said he asked for the ruling after receiving some requests from citizens that he use the national guard to prevent the racing meet opening at Hot Springs tomorrow.

tion at slightly more than $15,000,000. The small companies fix their rate valuations at $10,000,000 but for taxation at less than $500,000.

Reported in Finish Fight.
There have been reports that the Southern Bell in order to avoid a tangled over tax valuation would withdraw its court action and accept rate cuts, as have the Georgia Power Company and the Savannah Electric Light and Power Company, the two largest power companies in the state. These reports apparently have no foundation as persons close to the telephone company insist the company is in the courts to a finish.

Those who believe the Southern Bell will withdraw its court action predicate that belief on the ground that if the case was to continue in the courts the master in chancery would have been appointed. However, it is learned that delay in appointing the master has been due to the failure of the public service commission to agree to the utility. It is now understood that Judge Underwood will name the master without seeking to determine whether or not he is agreeable to either side.

The railroads as well as other utilities must file their tax returns today, but what if anything will be done concerning them cannot be determined. Only one railroad rate reduction has been ordered. This was on fertilizer rates. That reduction was enjoined and then cancelled. The commission has held a new hearing on fertilizer rates but its decision has not been announced. Neither has a decision on general class and commodity rates been announced, although a hearing has been held on these.

Several Avenues Open.
The governor has other ways to strike back at the railroads. There are a number of special taxes imposed on business and trade which might be eliminated or reduced just as the prices of automobile license tags were reduced. Or he could go even further. He could reduce or even eliminate the gas tax. All of these things could be done by motor vehicle and thereby cut off railroad revenue.

Everything which is being done or even contemplated is being done cautiously. The governor has had a number of conferences lately with Comptroller-General Harrison. The last time he was asked what was the meaning of it all, he said:

"Well, you know I'm in favor of low taxes and low utility rates."

FIERY SCOT FLAYS COMMONS IN CAUSE 'OF HUNGER MARCH'

LONDON, Feb. 28. (UP)—The house of commons, normally one of the world's most staid parliamentary bodies, was thrown into an uproar today by John McGovern, fiery labor member from Scotland.

McGovern, in his effort to get a group of 300 "hunger marchers" into parliament, interrupted a dull debate to shout:

"This damned house is only a farce," and stamped out of the chamber.

The scene occurred when 300 "hunger marchers" sought to gain entrance to commons. About 100 were permitted to enter but another 200 were forced to stand outside in the rain.

McGovern interrupted a dull debate to query:

"I want to know why well-dressed people are being admitted downstairs, while those poor devils are made to stand in the rain and snow."

The speaker replied that no discrimination was being made.

"It's a damned outrage," McGovern shouted.

"Order, order," cried exasperated members of the cabinet, from the ministerial bench.

"To hell with you and order," McGovern retorted.

He was severely rebuked by the speaker, who threatened to eject McGovern from the house. McGovern, fuming that the "damned house is only a farce," left the chamber on his own accord.

The date has not been set.

WORKERS STRIKE TODAY ON K. C. SOUTHERN R. R.

KANSAS CITY, Feb. 28. (AP)—An order was issued here this afternoon for a strike by all Kansas City Southern railway trainmen at 6 p. m. tomorrow. An executive committee of the railroad brotherhoods posted the order.

Action was taken upon receipt of a conference today of Charles E. Johnston, president of the road, with Joseph B. Eastman, federal railroad co-ordinator, had resulted in no compromise in the company's dispute with trainmen over a new wage scale and set of working conditions which become effective tomorrow. About 500 workers will be affected.

Famed Monte Carlo Ballet Russe Will Be Presented Here Tonight

The famed Monte Carlo Ballet Russe will arrive in Atlanta early this afternoon on a special train, and will be presented at the city auditorium at 8:30 o'clock tonight under the auspices of the All-Star Concert Series.

It is the first ballet to visit Atlanta since Pavlova appeared here in 1925 and is the largest and most spectacular company to be brought to America since the Metropolitan Opera Company presented Diaghileff and his Ballet Russe in a coast-to-coast tour in 1916.

No attraction that has appeared here in many years has created such a widespread interest, and every indication points to a sold-out house for tonight's performance, it was announced.

Although in Europe there has always been a ballet of some kind going on since the Italian Renaissance, except during periods of war and sporadic opportunities to enjoy this unique form of theatrical spectacle.

Cotton Cut to 11,000,000 Bales Would End Surplus, Gann Says

If the cotton farmers of the south will hold down their 1934 yield to not more than 11,000,000 bales, the surplus of cotton, due to active worldwide consumption, should be cleaned up in a year, leaving only a normal crop, according to W. D. Gann, cotton broker and statistician of New York.

But, Mr. Gann warned, there's the rub. He said in this country, his statement on a preliminary investigation, are not going to sign a curtailment agreement with the government.

He said that Miami was having the best season it had ever enjoyed. The turn away from early cotton was being turned away. Many of the visitors are southerners, Mr. Gann said.

He was accompanied by Karl E. Voelter, pilot.

DOCTOR CONTINUES AID TO MEDICINE EVEN AFTER DEATH

DENVER, Colo., Feb. 28. (UP)—Strong possibility of another victory for medicine over disease was seen here Monday night after an autopsy upon the body of Dr. S. D. Van Meter, surgeon renowned for his fight against gonorrhea.

Van Meter, who died last night, requested shortly before his death that the post-mortem be made in the interests of his profession.

Dr. Van Meter succumbed early today at 68 to a strange malignancy of one of the lower vertebrae of the spinal column, according to Dr. W. S. Dennis, city pathologist, conducted the autopsy and began a microscopic examination which he hoped would lead to a diagnosis of the disease that caused Dr. Van Meter's death and which hitherto has defied efforts of the world's leading physicians to determine.

Dr. Van Meter occupied his last moments with urging his daughter to arrange for the autopsy in the hope that the disease which was ending his life would be discovered and diagnosed and a remedy devised so that it need not prove fatal to others.

HIGHER RATE ALLOWED ON WOOD SHIPMENTS

New Ruling Applies to Tobacco Shipped Charleston, Savannah, Jacksonville.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28. (AP)—The interstate commerce commission today authorized railroads serving gulf seaports to fix rates on unmanufactured tobacco in hogsheads without regard for differentials formerly applied on tobacco shipped to South Atlantic seaports.

The move, which will allow an increase in rates for export tobacco through Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville, was made in an effort to permit the railroads to compete with unregulated truck and barge lines operating into New Orleans, Mobile and Pensacola.

Today's action reverses a decision made in 1924 which required that a distance differential be applied to rates through the South Atlantic ports. Under the old decision the rate to

South Atlantic ports was higher than the rate to gulf ports, according to the distance from the point of origin.

The tobacco in question originates in western Kentucky and northwestern Tennessee and along the Ohio river.

The matter was brought to a head when the railroads serving gulf ports put into effect temporary reduced rates in order to obtain a portion of a 15,000,000-pound tobacco purchase by the Spanish government. These rates expired December 1, 1933, and rates on a somewhat higher level went into effect December 30 and will expire in June, 1934.

College Graduate Confesses 4 Murders, Series of Holdups

BOSTON, Feb. 28.—(P)—The most astounding confession ever made to Massachusetts police was related, State Detective John F. Stokes announced, by Abraham M. Faber, university graduate held in the slaying of two Needham policemen.

Police said it involved the Millen brothers, Irving and Merton, in a series of holdups and slayings gigantic in scope.

The confession, as related by state detectives, accounted, they said, for four slayings, theater and bank robberies, thefts from a state police exhibit at the Boston auto show and attempts to secure weapons from greater Boston armories.

It would challenge belief police say, except that they have checked many of its details and declare them to be true.

The Millen brothers, being held in New York pending extradition to Massachusetts, were arrested in that city Sunday by Massachusetts and New York detectives.

Norma Millen, was taken with them, but she was paroled in the custody of her father and they returned here.

Indictments charging murder in the first degree were returned today at Dedham, Mass., by a special grand jury against Irving and Merton Millen, brothers, and Abraham Faber. The three are accused of shooting to death two policemen in the Needham bank robbery in Needham.

Faber was picked up by state officers the next day and lodged in Dedham county jail on a warrant charging the murder of the Needham officers.

He confessed yesterday, state police said, to State Detectives Stokes, Joseph L. Ferrari and Michael J. Fleming.

The confession freed Louis Berrett and Clement Molway, Boston taxi drivers who have been on trial in Salem superior court for the slaying of a bill poster during a holdup at the Paramount theater in Lynn. A directed verdict of not guilty was returned by the jury last night and the Boston men walked from the Salem court—innocent men.

The Faber confession state detectives said, named Faber and the two Millen brothers as the killers of the two Needham officers slain during the robbery of the Needham Trust Company; placed them as the killers of a Fitchburg sporting goods store manager, and branded them as the slayers of Fred Sumner, bill poster at the Paramount theater in Lynn.

Faber is a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, an expert electrician and radio technician and a reserve officer in the United States army. He conceived the gigantic criminal plan, according to his own statements, police said.

The confession, as made known by State Detectives Stokes, Ferrari and Fleming, included the following details:

Amazing plans for holdups and get-aways which included days of pistol practice in the Sharon woods so that they might kill if necessary.

The caching of dynamite to be used to blow up roads should it be necessary to their escape.

Planned raids on armories to secure a large assortment of guns and ammunition.

Unsuccessful attempts to get machine guns at armories in Cambridge and Quincy.

The shooting and killing of the manager of a Fitchburg sporting goods store in cold blood when he refused to reopen the store and turn over guns and ammunition.

The slaying of a bill poster at the Paramount theater in Lynn during a holdup which netted the trio $180.

The robbery of the Palace theater, Worcester.

The raid on a state police exhibit at the Boston auto show to get machine guns and ammunition.

The robbery of the Needham Trust Company of $14,000 and the killing of two Needham policemen who got in their way.

State detective Stokes quoted Faber as saying:

"It was a business proposition with us. We figured that we could get rich and we agreed that we would kill anyone who got in our way."

"Everything we did was carefully planned and we didn't care how many lives we took as long as we accomplished our objective—to get rich."

"After the Needham holdup, we drove to the Worcester Turnpike road and turned on our short wave radio. We heard the police broadcast and just laughed."

"... on a night four days after the Needham robbery we decided to get rid of the automobile. We drove the car to Norwood and set fire to it after dismantling the radio."

"We didn't figure when we dumped the car that the police would ever be able to trace us through the battery. That was our mistake."

"I guess it was our first mistake."

"Then the Millen brothers decided to go to New York."

"The rest you know."

Torture Bandits Given Sentences of Death

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 28.—(UP)—Death sentences were decreed today for Harry Brooks and William Tanner, accused "torture bandits," by a jury which found them guilty under the new California law fixing kidnapping as a capital crime.

It was the first verdict of its kind since the statute, inspired by the Lindbergh case, became effective a few months ago.

The jury, deliberating less than five hours, convicted Brooks and Tanner on charges of kidnapping Henry Bowman, an attorney, and robbing him of $1,700.

6 CANDIDATES ANSWER QUESTIONS OF JURORS

Six Others Ignore Questionnaire, Thirteenth Declines; Clash Marks Rally.

As six of the 13 candidates for Fulton county commission Wednesday recorded their definite views regarding county administration in answer to a questionnaire by the Grand Jurors' Association of Fulton county, 10 of the aspirants took the stump at a meeting sponsored Wednesday night by Dr. Charles B. Adams, one of the candidates, at the Joel Chandler Harris school.

Six of the candidates ignored the questionnaire, and the thirteenth, W. Ches. Smith, refused to do answers, saying he would "let my conscience be my guide."

Three of the candidates held that a $9,000 salary for superior court judges is not excessive, and asserted they were afraid good lawyers would not seek the bench if the pay were reduced. They were Edwin F. Johnson, Joe W. Ray and Quincy O. Arnold.

F. W. Benteen would reduce the salaries, while William L. McCalley Jr. and Thomas Croom Partridge said they opposed fixing of the salaries by the commissioners.

Only Benteen favored a reduction of 20 per cent in county taxes. Johnson said such a move would impair necessary county services, and the other four favored such reductions as they deemed advisable after a thorough study.

Divided on Attorney's Salary.

On the question of reducing the salary of the county attorney to $400 a month and forcing him to occupy offices in the courthouse, McCalley said the salary should be based on qualification. Johnson believed a competent full-time attorney could be procured for $400 a month; Benteen replied in favor of the move; Ray believed the salary should be less than $400, but opposed placing him in the courthouse; Partridge believed the county does not need a full-time attorney, and favored employing one to handle necessary litigation for $400 a month; Arnold believed $400 a month sufficient, but opposed courthouse offices.

All six pledged themselves not to accept appointment as receiver from a judge of the superior court.

Benteen answered "yes" in answer to a question as to whether he would vote to abolish useless jobs in the municipal court and discharge relatives of influential politicians. Johnson said he knew who the municipal court was singled out, but he and the others pledged themselves to eliminate useless jobs. All candidates agreed to budgeting county expenses.

Salaries of $7,500 a year for municipal court judges were branded as excessive by Benteen, Ray, Partridge and Arnold, but Johnson said good lawyers could not be obtained for less. McCalley said the salaries should not be fixed by the commission.

All candidates opposed brow-beating or intimidating grand jurors in the discharge of their duties.

Resenting an assertion by T. W. Fowler, representing Councilman Ed L. Almond, a candidate, that "all aspirants concede one of the places to Almond and are engaged in a scramble for the two other posts," McCalley, Wednesday night challenged the claim.

The clash was the only feature thus far of the campaign in which 13 are seeking the three positions in the primary to be held next Wednesday.

Fowler's contention was that Almond favors good schools, good roads, an improved police department and health and sanitation.

McCalley cited his record as a member of the Atlanta board of education and contended he opposed location of the Girls' High school at its present site.

"I do not know who concedes that any one candidate in these races has one of the positions," he said. "I do not. Just who is making such a concession? I always thought these places belonged to the voters of Fulton county and not to any candidate."

Other speakers were Dr. Adams, Arnold, Walter B. Stewart, Johnson, Smith, Benteen and Councilman H. Parks Rusk, all candidates.

All candidates were invited to attend a rally at 7:30 o'clock tonight sponsored by the College Park Woman's Club. The meeting will be held at the club house at College Park.

February's Clearings Increase $46,700,000

An increase of $46,700,000 in clearings of February of 1934 over the same period of 1933 was announced Wednesday by the Atlanta Clearing House Association. Total clearings for the last month were $143,218,000.

The last day of February showed clearings of $8,909,000 which on the same day of the month for 1933 the amount was $3,507,000. Officials said the gain was extremely large but that the 1933 figures would have been larger except for the emergency which arose last year at this time.

France May Recognize German Arms Demand

PARIS, Feb. 28.—(P)—The acceptance of an agreement recognizing Germany's demands for more arms and entitling France to retain her present strong army was reported tonight to be under consideration by Premier Doumergue.

Such a course would give France a definite arms superiority and would be a reversal of former Foreign Minister Joseph Paul-Boncour's policy of resisting German rearmament.

It was considered particularly significant in view of the return tomorrow of Captain Anthony Eden, the British lord privy seal, for disarmament discussions after similar conferences earlier here and in Rome and Berlin.

FLORIDA WOMAN DIES IN GAS-FILLED ROOM

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 28.—(P)—No inquest into the death of Mrs. John Elliot, 50, died yesterday in the gas-filled kitchen of her home in the Pasadena section, will be held; it was decided today by Magistrate J. E. Carpenter.

Mrs. Elliot was a retired buyer for Altman's, New York city, was found dead by her husband upon his return from a golf tournament of which he was a spectator. Artificial respiration by an ambulance crew and heart stimulants failed to revive her.

MYSTERY BLAST HURTS 6 IN OKLAHOMA MINE

CAMBRIA, Okla., Feb. 28.—(P)—Six men were burned, none believed dangerously, in a "flash" explosion today 3,000 feet down in the Kall-Inla coal mine here.

The cause of the explosion was a mystery, mine officials said, since the workings had been inspected for gas an hour before 17 workers went into the mine.

Red Band Mill Is Considered Model Plant of Its Type

Plant of the Red Band Mill in Johnson City, Tenn., considered a model of its kind.

The Red Band mill, located in Johnson City, Tenn., in the rare air and sunshine of the Appalachian mountains, is one of the finest plants in the south. The Red Band Company was formerly the Model Mill, originally built in 1914, but was completely rebuilt and reorganized under an entirely new management in 1925.

Old machinery was replaced by the most modern and scientific equipment, and each year changes and replacements keep the plant absolutely up-to-date in every respect.

Its location makes it possible to draw wheat from all important wheat producing sections. A thorough study was made of wheat from all sources, and selection was made of those which supplied just exactly the right kind of wheat to produce Red Band flour. After endless experimenting, analyzing and baking, a standard was arrived at which would provide the exact proportions of gluten and starch for a perfect all-purpose flour.

The mill's spotless cleanliness everywhere is the marvel of all visitors. The plant is equipped with air suction dust collectors, which keep the air free of excess dust, and with men whose duty is to dust and sweep and mop all day long to keep any dust from settling. Every man in the mill is supplied with spotless white uniforms, and each is required to take a daily shower bath in the mill clubhouse.

In the chemical laboratory an expert chemist analyzes each car of wheat as it arrives and constantly checks and analyzes the mill streams. Samples are brought every 30 minutes to the baking laboratory, and these samples are baked into biscuits and cakes as a check on Red Band's baking qualities.

To Address Agency

Vincent B. Coffin, superintendent of agencies for the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company, will be in Atlanta today to address members of the Baxter Maddox agency and representatives of the company for Atlanta and northern Georgia. Mr. Coffin will discuss some of the new sales aids recently put out by the Connecticut Mutual, and several of the new policy contracts recently devised by this company to meet present-day conditions.

When the blue sky division manager reported on January 31 that $100,000 of bonds were missing, Reece testified he believed the reference was to the substitute securities that he said Tobin had agreed to provide. He said he did not join the manager in a search because "I knew then that Tobin had not put them there."

Commissioner Tobin told him, the witness continued, that the blue sky manager "had no right to complain" as Tobin was responsible for securities and that no bonds were missing.

Much Work, Little Loot.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 28.—(P)—Thieves broke open a window of the Raleigh, Tenn., postoffice, near here, during the night, battered the window fully at a steel safe and searched through papers and drawers. They got 50 pennies for their trouble.

REGENT IS RE-ELECTED

BY MISSISSIPPI D.A.R.

CLARKSDALE, Miss., Feb. 28.—(P)—Mrs. Alexander L. Bonduant, of Corinth, was re-elected state regent of the Mississippi department, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the conclusion of the annual meeting here yesterday.

Mrs. Walter Sillers, of Rosedale, was elected vice regent. Both will serve for terms of two years.

NEED NOT PUNISH YOURSELF WITH OLD-TIME DRASTIC MEANS TO GET RELIEF

Newest medical way, double-action Placidan, is pleasant to the taste and positive in giving you relief from the distress

No wonder so many people who were afflicted with excessive acidity and sour stomachs are now praising Placidan, as this new 2-way preparation is known in all drug stores.

Placidan is so remarkable in its relief of sick, sour stomachs because it is a combination of four antacids. Each one proved for its beneficial effect on acid indigestion. One checks acidity at once, bringing immediate relief. Others act later, keeping the stomach sweet for hours. In the meantime, a potent new diastase promotes digestion of starchy foods. This helps remove the stomach's burden. That's why so many people take Placidan. Try it yourself. It's the latest medical way. Get Placidan at all drug stores.

"For years I had trouble with gas and acid. When Placidan was recommended I expected only temporary relief. To my joy and surprise, my stomach trouble practically disappeared. Now—Placidan every time I feel a little gassy."

PAYING THE PIPER.

The upward trend in municipal tax rates, as revealed in published figures from a group of representative American cities, emphasizes the extent to which the taxpayers of the country are now having to pay the piper for governmental extravagance and mismanagement.

In this group of cities, representing every section of the country, the tax rates this year will be higher than in 1933 in the case of eight of the municipalities, three will have the same rate and five will have reduced rates, among the latter being Atlanta.

A comparison of the rates to be imposed this year in these cities as against those of five years ago further reflects the wisdom of the rigorous program of economy under which the Atlanta city government has been operated during the years when both private and public revenues were steadily declining.

Only two of the 16 cities—Atlanta and New Orleans—show a decrease in the tax burden on the basis of comparison, the taxpayers of the other communities having now, as the result of failure to keep public expenditures in line with revenues, to shoulder a greater burden than even in the boom days of large incomes.

During this period Atlanta taxes have been lowered 20 per cent through reduction of assessments. The Los Angeles rate has grown from $1.72 per $100 to $2.84, Detroit's from $2.15 to $2.40, Portland's from $3.20 to $3.76, Boston's from $2.88 to $3.55, and with material increases being put into effect in most of the other cities.

Even with the sharp reduction effected in the burden being borne by the taxpayers of Atlanta, the affairs of the city government are in far better condition than those in which the tax burden has been increased.

There is no threat of municipal insolvency here, but many cities of the country, with less businesslike administration of their affairs, have been on the verge of bankruptcy for months.

It has not been an easy nor a pleasant task for the city administration to put into effect the necessary curtailment of public service and the salary reductions that have been made, but the wisdom of these steps is demonstrated by the fact that the taxpayers of this city are now able to work towards economic recovery with a lower tax burden, while those of other communities are handicapped in their progress by an increased tax burden.

It is to the credit of the Atlanta administration that the necessary economies have been effected without seriously impairing public service and without reducing the salaries of public employees to as great an extent as all incomes have fallen during the past four years.

It is a record for which every citizen of Atlanta should be proud and one which points the course of wisdom for the future. It is a record which convincingly demonstrates the fact that unless public expenditures are kept within public revenues, the taxpayer will be the sufferer in the long run.

THE SEARCH FOR "GRAFT."

Whatever the results of the various investigations into the expenditures and conduct of federal departments now going on in Washington, these hearings are certain to be used as political capital in the congressional elections next fall.

Should facts be unearthed definitely indicating either outright graft or unfair favoritism in the letting of contracts under republican administrations, an almost certain end will be put to republican hopes that they may regain some of the seats which they lost in the landslide of 1932.

The charges being presented before the various hearings in Washington involve both present and former officials of the army and navy departments, of other departments and congressional leaders. Graft, favoritism, the consorting of high officials with lobbyists and the putting of improper pressure by members of congress upon departmental heads are being alleged and, in some instances, backed with documentary evidence.

The nature of these charges of favor and collusion are such that they must be investigated fully in order that their accuracy or inaccuracy may be proven. It is impossible to overlook such allegations as the charge that former Senator Reed Smoot, iron-handed dictator of the senate under republican rule, practically forced Comptroller General McCall to reconsider his refusal to give an air mail contract to a line with which Smoot's son was connected.

If proven true, these charges will prove that the scandals of the Hoover administration are little less sensational than those which have been the Harding regime.

Whatever the outcome is, the investigations are certain to furnish campaign ammunition this fall, and it is probable that the country, even after the official investigations are over, will continue to hear accusations based on these charges of malpractice.

OVERDUE RECOGNITION.

According to reports from Hsinking, the capital of the new state of Manchukuo, the earnest hope is felt that the enthronement of Pu Yi as emperor will pave the way for recognition of the government by the United States.

Definite plans for approaching the American government are now being considered and it is believed that informal conversation with Washington, with recognition as the objective, will take place in the near future.

If such approaches are made to the American government, the only wise course for this country to pursue will be to receive them cordially and with the end in view of the establishment, as soon as possible, of diplomatic relations between Manchukuo and the United States.

Under the Stimson administration of the state department, the United States joined with the member nations of the League of Nations in refusing to grant recognition to the new far eastern state.

Now France, Germany and other members of the League of Nations are clearly moving towards recognition, actuated in this right about face by the desire to get in on the ground floor in the rich trade of the new state.

The United States should not be caught napping in these diplomatic moves because to do so will mean that we will lose trade connections and contracts which normally would come to this country.

No good purpose can be served by longer refusing to recognize Manchukuo. Its government is definitely and permanently established on a sound basis and to refuse to admit it to the family of world nations would result in harm both to the new state and to all other nations as a result of the complications that will exist in diplomatic and trade relations.

Manchukuo is located in one of the richest regions of the world, with abundant natural resources of every kind. It has a population of more than 30,000,000 and millions of immigrants are every year seeking opportunity for peace and prosperity within its borders.

The government of Pu Yi, with the assistance of Japan, has already brought for the first time to much of the territory, schools, good roads and good public service.

The United States will be standing in its own light if it longer refuses to grant diplomatic recognition to Manchukuo, especially since it is apparent that this can be done on any basis that this government may dictate.

If we fail to act until after France and Germany have gotten the start on us, our interests in the far east will have received a setback from which it will, in all probability, take years to recover.

Albert of the Belgians.

They buried him in St. Godebald cathedral the other day. And with that burial a new epoch in the history of the southern Netherlands opens. Albert succeeded in welding the two nations over which he ruled together, although it took a war to perform that impossible task. The next quarter century will show whether or not his handwork will endure. He was a brave man, although not a great man. He was carried forward on the waves of events to a place where the destinies of the world were focused upon him. He became the symbol of the martyrdom of a people, a defender of justice and a hero to his people.

He was a man with a great heart and a noble character. He had an extremely difficult task. The traditions of his dynasty required him to do the impossible. He was to nationalize the Flemish people and turn them into Frenchmen. It is Albert's merit that he recognized that this could not be done. The Flemings are simply irreducible. The very opposite happened than that which was laid down as the main policy of the Belgian crown in 1830: the Flemings became ardent nationalists and clamored for a break-up of the kingdom. Albert met their challenge with a wise policy of leaving them to work out their own destiny, according to their own national character and genius. It had its effect. Today the Flemings are more and more Flemings and are beginning to see that it will be possible for their people to acquire cultural autonomy within the framework of the Belgian state.

No break is necessary. As in the days of war, a common task is now facing the two peoples of Belgium, the Flemings and the Walloons. It is to bring back well-being and happiness to the hard-pressed masses. In this respect, Albert, the king, was an adviser and a counselor who can ill be spared. All his life he was taken up with studying the social question, much more than the political one. He was a man who was right. That is the main issue confronting the little state.

What policy his son, the new king, will pursue is not known. The process for Belgium is still a country ruled by a parliament. He will follow in the footsteps of his father. But whether Leopold III can exercise the welding influence of Albert is doubtful. Albert had claims on the affection of both Walloons and Flemings which Leopold must not acquire. He comes to the throne in a difficult time. There are not what they used to be.

Contrasts.

Traveling as I do at present in the United States, the visitor not much chance to go into profound studies of social conditions. I am here today and there tomorrow. All I can do is make superficial observations and draw what ever deductions that seem to impose themselves. I heard Mrs. Roosevelt speak the other night about the need for a more equal distribution of wealth, with a hint that her illustrious husband is mourning in that direction.

For the time being we are far from this ideal of the present. We are on the one hand tumble-down shacks, with barefooted children in the doorway. I am approached for hand-outs by hungry neophytes and beggars for the unemployed in lower Manhattan, Philadelphia and Boston. I hear tales of woe and despair, and on the other hand, the ostentatious display of wealth and extravagance that surpasses anything at the most luxurious courts of Europe. Glittering boxes, people for the day pass on golden feet, people who slumber through the morning hours to get ready for afternoons and evenings of dissipation. Debauchery, extravagance, elaborate food, prodigality in spending, and with it all a collapse of morale, both among the poor and the rich.

There is in my superficial impression of America. These things can't go on. There will be a change. Louis XIV spoke once in careless mien about not caring what the peasants thought, but even if it were the danger. Let us not forget that the deluge did come.

FROM THE TIPS OF YOUR FINGERS.

The bell rang as we were demonstrating the circulation of the capillaries the other day. By pressing gently on a finger nail you can see the wavering line between the flush and the blanching, provided your nails are not decorated in the late appalling fashion.

Capillaries are not blood vessels, but merely spaces between the cells, through which the blood seeps, as water seeps through sand. No one has ever a blood vessel finer than the smallest artery, which physiologists call arteriole.

The blood that has seeped through the capillary spaces—it is here that the interchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide occurs, oxygen carried to the tissues and the carbon dioxide picked up from the tissues to be taken back to the lungs. From the capillary spaces, in all tissues of the body, the blood is collected in the very smallest veins, called venules, and these join again to form larger veins, and finally the great vein, called vena cava, carries the blood to the right auricle of the heart.

Through an oversight, as it seems at first, no valves were installed between the vena cava and the right auricle. Nothing prevent the backflow of blood from the veins of the limbs and the head into the larger veins, and the larger veins have valves far from the heart so that they hold nearly a pint of blood. Probably that pint of blood is sucked into the venous system with each inspiration, and pumped through the heart with each four or five heartbeat. That's the ordinary ratio of breathing rate and pulse rate. Remember, it takes 25 seconds for the blood to make the complete circuit of the body, and an adult weighing 150 pounds has 8 to 9 pounds of blood. Six ounces pumped out by every heart beat. How does it all figure out?

From the auricle the blood passes through the tricuspid valve into the ventricle, and at the next heartbeat it is pumped from the ventricle through the pulmonary valve through the pulmonary artery to the lungs. Here it once more seeps through capillaries, gives up its load of carbon dioxide, takes on a fresh load of oxygen, is collected into venules, which carry it back to the heart, and then back to the left auricle through the pulmonary veins. No valve at entrance of the left auricle either—

News Behind the News

By Paul Mallon.

SADNESS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—There is weeping and wailing at the state and commerce departments. The hearts of Secretaries Hull and Roper are broken. George N. Peek is back on top again. The life of a new dealer is a hard one—up today and down tomorrow. Mr. Peek is a shining example. He was up two weeks ago when he sold the president the great idea of using government money to finance exports. Thereafter he was down until last Tuesday because the president confined Mr. Peek's grand scheme to Russia alone. Tuesday the president announced that the scheme would not be confined only to Russia after all. Cuba will be in on it. So will other nations which want to borrow money to buy goods here.

Mr. Peek's charm may explain partially his new rise to fame and power, but there are indications he used something more than charm this time.

HELP

No one will believe it, but the man who helped him was his old enemy, Professor Tugwell. Insiders say Professor Tugwell is the smartest manipulator in the inner circle. Mr. Peek found that out when Professor Tugwell slipped roller skates under him and pushed him gently out of the agricultural adjustment administration some months back.

That is probably why Mr. Peek went to Professor Tugwell with his troubles when the White House was turning against his export idea. Apparently, Mr. Peek convinced Professor Tugwell that two such clever boys as they should work together and not against each other.

Mr. Peek had the additional convincing argument that he could sell a lot of surplus agricultural products abroad if he loaned government money to do it.

GALL

At any rate, Messrs. Peek and Tugwell were suspiciously friendly at that private White House gathering on foreign trade last Monday. They agreed on everything and got all Mr. Peek wanted.

Afterward the White House issued on behalf of Mr. Peek a statement which one disgruntled insider described as "a modern duplicate of Washington's farewell address."

One section was headed: "To Agriculture," another "To Industry," the third "To the Merchant." Under each heading Mr. Peek told each particular class what he was going to do for it in no uncertain terms.

It was bitter gall to the state and commerce department people, especially the paragraph in which Mr. Peek said he would coordinate all their trade business under himself.

REASONS

The state and commerce boys have felt that it might be unpopular to lend more money abroad before we collect what they owe us now.

The Peek people have figured a way around that objection. They are not going to lend money abroad. Not one dollar will ever leave these shores. They are merely going to give the money to domestic exporters and take the L. O. U. of the foreign buyers.

That is not exactly a new scheme. It is the same method we used to incur some of the war debts. Great Britain, France et al wanted food and manufacturing products here so we financed the purchase, taking their L. O. U.'s, which we still have.

Nevertheless, the Peek-Tugwell people appear to be confident that it will work out differently this time and be a boon to agriculture.

It should bring an immediate improvement in the price of exportable farm commodities such as wheat. The wheat farmers have needed help lately.

JOY

The republicans in congress are so happy they cannot contain themselves. It is the first time they have been seen to smile since November, 1932.

The causes of their enjoyment are the new air mail and veterans' issues.

Hardly a day passes in either house that the republicans do not arise and chide the administration for its air mail cancellation policy. The chiding will continue because the republicans are convinced that they have a good issue, at last.

Likewise on the veterans' allowances in the senate, such republican straight-men as Reed, Metcalf, Kean et al have been frolicking around the chamber like sweet girl graduates on class day. They have made Senator Jim Byrnes sick. He could not even protest for the administration. He knew it was no use. The republicans were with them to assure a majority. There was really no use in calling the roll.

Byrnes folded up and let them put everything in his bill without a struggle.

NOTES

A consumers' organization is spreading the word around that Senator Copeland should not be handling the pure food and drug bill because he gives weekly radio talks for a yeast company and formerly gave similar talks for a mineral oil.

Postmaster-General Farley took the strongest possible steps to keep his air mail cancellation decision from reaching Wall Street before it was announced. Not even his secretary and the president's secretaries knew anything about it. Nevertheless, air mail stocks sold off before the announcement was made.

There is going to be trouble around the house unless Speaker Rainey orders the elevator service in the house office building to start before 7:30 a. m. Representative Doughton, of a North Carolina farming district, arrives at that time each day. He has been accustomed to catching the freight elevator, the only one working at that hour. Recently it has been out of service and he has had to walk upstairs to his office. He has taken the matter up with Speaker Rainey.

There has been another leak in the senate, this time in the roof. Melting snows dripped into the galleries and doorkeepers put tin buckets around in the proper spots.

It Isn't Love That Gives an Infant Some Poison Then It Cries For

By Robert Quillen

The typical American of the class called "gentle" astonishes the world by his indulgent kindness to his family.

Yet in this, as in all other matters, he is a natural extremist, and often his good intentions end in weakness that does more harm than good. To gratify his family's present desires he will violate his better judgment and give them temporary pleasure at the price of ultimate disaster.

Even my limited acquaintanceship includes four men who sacrificed or now are sacrificing themselves to avoid displeasing their families.

Each of them, having lost his health, was told by competent physicians that his only hope of regaining it was to quit work for a time and move to another climate.

But each one knew that his family would suffer some inconvenience if he elected to be "selfish." If they migrated with him they would miss their friends and customary social pleasures; whether they migrated or remained at home, they would be forced to pinch pennies and deny themselves luxuries until he began to work again.

So each man chose to do the thing that seemed generous and doomed himself to an early death rather than inconvenience his family.

How cruel good intentions can be! If a man is needed by his family, his first duty is to save himself. If he realizes that he is shortening his life, and his family does not, his clear duty is to do the thing prompted by his own superior judgment and disregard the scoffings, pleadings or poutings of those who depend on him.

Would he knowingly drive the family car into a bed of quicksand if his loved ones, being ignorant of the danger, urged him to do it?

To sacrifice himself and leave them without a provider is a greater wrong. For he not only shortens his life without justification, but in doing it to please his family he makes them responsible for his death.

It is a many thing to be a martyr when the cause is worthy and the need great, but it isn't manly to destroy the living of your wife and children because you are afraid to displease them.

MEDIATION BEGUN ON ROME STRIKE

Effort Made to Refer Controversy to Regional Labor Board.

By ROBERT BUNELLE.
ROME, Ga., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Opposing factions in the three-month old Southern Co-operative Foundry strike, in which troops were even asked to preserve order, took their first step toward a settlement today by conferring with representatives of Governor Thalmage giving hope for mediation without intervention by the military.

After conferences with E. E. Lindsey of the state board of control, Adjutant General Camp and Nance returned to Atlanta to await the reply. If favorable, a date for a hearing will be fixed and the whole matter aired before the labor board.

Meanwhile, the situation remained unchanged and those in touch with the case regarded it unlikely troops would be called out unless there is some drastic show of violence.

James Perrier, Emmett Park and Grover Bunch, the committee for the strikers, explained their side of the situation today. They contended that after a settlement of a general strike of all Rome foundries, the Southern Co-operative was left with an unfavorable wage differential although the other foundry workers were paid $4.50 to $6.00 per day on an average where they were left with an average of around $3.00.

In addition to this grievance, they charged, the Southern Co-operative now has refused to take back out of the strike the 150 men who were dismissed. The foundry officials, representatives of the governor said, contended that the question of re-employment of the two committee members was the paramount one in the way of settlement of the strike. They charged that they did not wish to re-employ the two men in question because of a tendency toward "agitation."

Meanwhile, the strikers have been picketing the foundry, which ordinarily employs from 100 to 150 men day and night. Tents have been set up outside the foundry, where the pickets stay, refusing to permit shipment of repair parts or other stock from the foundry. Monday, an attempt to send out a carload of parcel post packages resulted in a clash between pickets and foundry officials. The entire police force was called out, but the strikers, ignoring their presence, lifted the automobile which was to have been used to move the parts bodily and carried it to the other side of the road, tossing the packages back in the foundry. Strikers charged a foundry official with a pipe on one of their number, but any acts of serious violence initiated by foundry officials were denied by J. Bailey Gordon, secretary-treasurer.

It was after this clash that Rome officials asked that troops be sent to the scene because of a "riotous atmosphere." Strikers denied that they ever used violence in preventing movement of the parcel post packages or added, however, they would not permit any shipments from the plant until their demands were met. They are asking reinstatement of all employees, including committeemen, and a wage increase amounting to about $1 a day. They said none has been armed during lengthy strike.

Strikers pointed out that the strike

New Bronze Romulus For Rome From Italy

ROME, Ga., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Georgia's city of seven hills is to get another Romulus to replace the one somebody removed several months ago from the bronze group of Romulus, Remus and the wolf that Premier Mussolini presented it some years ago.

The group was given Rome, Ga., because of its situation in the hills and its name Rome, Italy. The statue was erected in front of the police station and one of the nude infants disappeared. Everybody said it was Romulus.

Civic leaders conveyed the information to Italy and Chief of Police Gordon said today another bronze statue of the same group would be placed in the group with heavier bolts than the one that is missing.

It was not called by the union, but was a voluntary walkout by the men. They are not receiving support from union funds, but other union men, individuals are contributing daily sums, ranging from 50 cents each, upward, to aid the strikers.

The strike committee said they had been assured by union foundry workers, both in Rome and in Atlanta, that if they needed additional forces to picket the foundry they would be given them by the workers as individuals. The committee declared the men were eager to return to work, but declared they would not recede from their demand that there be a reinstatement of all workers. They charged the foundry had refused to treat with the strike committee now in charge, and added that the strikers would elect no other committee.

Federal Investigator in Lowndes Finds Appalling House Problems

VALDOSTA, Ga., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Valdosta Times quotes Miss Jamie Jenkins, supervisor of the county rural housing survey, as saying that she found several two and three-room houses in Lowndes county with from 12 to 17 persons living in them and in some cases families are living in tobacco barns.

Her report said the county has 205,258 acres, covering 400 square miles and contains 1,925 farms. White farmers operate 1,186 and 921 are operated by negroes. The average size of the farms is 106.6 acres.

"The types of farming in the county are chiefly tobacco and cotton farming," her report said, "and since the farm products for the past years have brought such low prices, farmers have had to let repairs on their property go lacking because of insufficient funds to pay for the work."

"Our survey shows the actual facts that exist in Lowndes county and I must say that I find distressing conditions in the rural homes."

"Some of the results of the survey show that in many cases families live in two and three-room houses; that in most cases, water must be carried from 50 feet to 3,000 feet; that 95 per cent of the rural homes need sanitary facilities and that the farmers are financially unable to make the needed repairs."

ROOSEVELT CANCELS NOMINATION OF TIGNER

Milledgeville Man Out of Postoffice After Russell Objection.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Representative Carl Vinson, of the sixth Georgia district, today announced that at his request President Roosevelt had withdrawn the nomination of Dr. Edward H. Tigner as postmaster at Milledgeville.

Mr. Vinson said he was prompted to make the move by objection to confirmation raised by Senator Richard B. Russell Jr., of Georgia, who had served notice he would interpose "personally obnoxious" objections if the nomination were not withdrawn.

Dr. Tigner, now acting postmaster at Milledgeville, Mr. Vinson's home, will continue in his present status until his successor is named.

President Roosevelt is known to have intervened in the Milledgeville man's behalf, summoning Senator Russell to the White House for a discussion of his reasons for opposing confirmation, but the junior Georgia senator remained adamant and notified the chief executive he would have to stand behind his original position.

The Tigner nomination had been scheduled to come up for hearing today by the senate committee in charge, but was called off after notice from the White House that it was being withdrawn.

Explaining his opposition, Senator Russell has charged that Dr. Tigner made certain derogatory remarks about him and members of his family. The committee once returned an unfavorable report but agreed to reconsider its action after representations by Mr. Vinson that the nominee desired to be heard.

Both colored and white paper will be made from the Bibb county trees, Dr. Herty said.

Lanford is reported to be considering making the race and Solicitor-General Ben Gibbs, of the Brunswick circuit, superior court, and E. Dekle, of Valdosta, already have announced. ## Paper From Bibb County Pines To Feature Middle Georgia Show MACON, Ga., Feb. 28.—Paper made from Bibb county pine trees in the Savannah laboratory of Dr. Charles H. Herty will be displayed at the middle Georgia business recovery exposition here March 19-24.

The trees, one cord of old field pine and two cords of loblolly pine, are to be taken from the farm of T. E. Edwards, on the Thomaston road, and shipped to Savannah.

The paper will be part of an exhibit showing the possibilities of manufacturing paper from Georgia pine. Central Georgia has deposits of kalmiopsis for the manufacture of paper, experts said. Rosin and alum, both essentials of paper manufacture, will also form part of the display.

Both colored and white paper will be made from the Bibb county trees, Dr. Herty said.

WYNEKOOP'S SON PLACED ON STAND

Witness Tells of Police Epithets While Physician Was Questioned.

CRIMINAL COURTS BUILD-ING, CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—(P)— Headed by Walker Wynekoop, 29-year-old son of the defendant, relatives of Dr. Alice Lindsay Wynekoop today took their turns on the witness stand as the defense undertook to overthrow the state's case of evidence implicating the 63-year-old physician as the slayer of her daughter-in-law, Rheta.

The gray-haired defendant heard her son's testimony in the same manner in which she did that of other witnesses, slumped down in her chair with her black felt hat pulled low over her eyes.

Walker testified to the events at the Fillmore police station on the night of questioning which preceded the "statement" made by Dr. Wynekoop that she had fired the shot into Rheta's body.

"Did you hear any remarks by police officers in your presence that night?" asked Defense Attorney W.
W. Smith.

"Yes," heard Sergeant Frank Donohue say. "We haven't been able to get anything out of the old yet," testified Walker as the crowded courtroom gasped.

That had occurred, Walker testified, during the questioning of his mother, which, he said, lasted from 10 p. m. Thursday night until 6 a.
m. Friday morning.

He said he had not been permitted to see her, nor had his lawyer, or her physician been allowed to enter during that period.

At one time Walker said he tried to take some coffee and sandwiches in to his mother, and in response to his knock some one in the room had said:
"What the hell do you want here?"

"During the questioning Walker dabbled his eyes. His voice, except when repeating what he had heard overhead Sergeant Donohue say about his mother, was calm, but when he quoted the police officer his tone was bitter.

Germany, came to Atlanta in 1903
after living in Boston for a number of years.

representative of Alameda Brothers,
of Boston, to develop Pinehurst, N.
C., and then came to Atlanta. During his residence in Atlanta he built up a widespread business in landscaping and seeds, and was a recognized authority on both subjects. He imported and exported seeds.

Grist From Washington Mills

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Day in Washington

By the Associated Press.

Mr. Gifford Pinchot, wife of Pennsylvania's governor, charged the NRA labor program was a
"gristly farce."

President Roosevelt outlined a broad plan of relief to take the place of civil works.

Ernest W. Smoot, son of the former Utah senator, told of receiving more than $19,750 from private industries while on the senate pay roll.

Stock exchange spokesmen disputed the right of congress to regulate their operations.

Democratic leaders in congress agreed to give the president increased tariff powers.

The house again refused to provide funds for purchases from the projected steel mill at Redsville, W. Va.

Agreement of all Filipino leaders to support independence bill was announced in the senate.

The senate approved an embargo on arms shipments to warring nations, and declined to ask the president his war debt plans.

Speaker Rainey said house passage of the senate-approved veterans' benefits and federal pay would handicap recovery.

Filipinos in Accord
On Independence Bill

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—(P)—
Senator Tamm, democrat, Maryland, chairman of the senate territories committee, today advised the senate that all Filipino leaders and factions had agreed on independence bill which would shortly be introduced in congress.

Public Hearing Will Be Held on Adverse Report of Special Board.

By GLADSTONE WILLIAMS.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—In notices sent today to members of the Georgia delegation in congress and other interested parties, the United States army board of engineers invited further data on the proposed ship or barge canal from the Atlantic to the Gulf of Mexico across Georgia and Florida. The additional data was requested with a view of holding a public hearing on the recent adverse report filed by a special board of army engineering corps if proponents of the project desire.

Interest in the major project has waned somewhat, however, since the recent announcement by President Roosevelt that, based on the initial report, he considered the cost of a ship canal prohibitive.

While the project did not express himself on the less expensive proposal for a barge canal the engineering report made public today for the first time reveals that an unfavorable recommendation was made against the barge route from the mouth of the St. Mary's river in Florida to the Gulf of Mexico.

This is the route for both a barge and ship canal as urged by the Georgia canal commission, headed by T. Guy Woodard, of Atlanta.

Board's Findings.
The special board, whose findings are subject to review by the full army board, determined that the route from the mouth of the St. Mary's river to the Gulf of Mexico was under the impression that a ship canal could be constructed for about $100,000,000 to $150,000,000. He was quick to disapprove the project when the more excessive cost figures were developed.

Whether in view of the president's attitude on the major project and the findings of the special board there is any chance that the lesser project may yet be adopted remains to be seen. Officials of the army board will address the subject at a public hearing on the subject and solicited additional data from any one desiring to ask for a review.

After citing the various acts and orders under which the recent survey was undertaken the board furnished members of congress with the following report on the two projects:

"An intracoastal waterway exists or has been authorized along the gulf coast from the Mississippi river to Carra Belle, Fla. The project is a special board therefore consider the feasibility and advisability of a waterway across Georgia and/or Florida to the existing Atlantic coast waterway at Cumberland sound with the Gulf inter-coastal waterway at Carra Belle, Fla. A waterway connecting the two waterways from the Atlantic coast to the Gulf with its termini connected by barge canals to the existing intracoastal waterways is considered, as well as an all-barge

"The special board has considered 28 different routes across both Georgia and Florida. The routes offering the most practical and economical route for a ship canal has been determined to be that following the St. John's river, through the Atlantic coast, and about Palatka, Fla. The route is a general westerly direction to the Gulf of Mexico, near the mouth of the Wilacochee river, Florida.

The board states that the most practical and economical route for an all-barge canal has been determined to be along the same general route, following more closely existing improved or natural waterways. From the gulf terminus at the mouth of the Wilacochee river the route extends to the eastern terminus of the existing gulf intercoastal waterway at Carra Belle along the coast, located between the mainland and the island shore line to afford adequate protection against open seas in rough weather.

"The special board finds that for either a ship or barge canal, the annual charges of the United States would greatly exceed the estimated annual savings and concluded that a waterway connecting the existing Atlantic intracoastal waterway at Cumberland sound with the eastern end of the Gulf intercoastal waterway at Carra Belle, Fla., is the most practical and economical route for a waterway extending easterly from the Mississippi river to the Gulf of Mexico.

"In accordance with law, the report has been referred to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors for consideration and recommendation. It having come to the notice of the board that the improvement of the waterway in the proposed improvement, you are advised that you have the right to appeal from the adverse conclusions of the special board to the board of engineers for rivers and harbors, and thereof be not undertaken by the United States.

"The board of engineers for rivers
and harbors, Room 2848, Marine building, Washington, D. C., should be hearing be posted, this can be arranged by correspondence with the board."

Stronger Defense
Sought in France

PARIS, Feb. 28.—(P)—France's new program to strengthen its navy air and sea forces gathered momentum today with a proposal for construction of a new "man of war" of 20-000 tons, an answer to Germany's 10,000-ton "pocket" battleships.

This government-sponsored plan was placed before the navy committee of the chamber of deputies, along with proposals for two additional submarines and a torpedo destroyer.

The new cruiser would be a virtual twin of the 26,500-ton Dunkerque, now under construction.

Meanwhile, Marshal Henri Petain, minister of war, before the army committee outlined plans to strengthen land forces and improve war supplies, including munitions.

AROUND LOCAL CONTRACT TABLES

by Whitney Cary

THE LADIES WON.

It was with deep pain and anguish, in which pride and fair play fought gallantly to overcome each other, with the latter finally getting the decision, that your commentator announces that a feminine team composed of Mrs. Gladys Peabody, Mrs. Humphrey Wager, Mrs. Spotswood Grant and Mrs. Joseph Taylor Jr. met and decisively defeated a masculine quartet composed of Joe David, O. C. Blackmon, Al Walton and the Terrence Bridge Club. I believe the margin of victory in the 40-board match was five boards.

The winning team won because it played the better brand of bridge. The masculine foursome had little to say over the defeat. This is probably the only statement that has been made, and you know I get paid for writing.

There was but one source of comfort at our defeat. That was that we were beaten by four fine players. That sounds hackneyed and ancient, but the fact remains that when you get Mrs. Grant, Mrs. Taylor, Mrs. Peabody and Mrs. Wager on one team you have a powerful quartet. If the match was played again I think they would beat us. I will now go out into the wilderness and eat of the locust and wild honey and garb myself in sackcloth and ashes.

The Walls of an Individual Player.

This writer had the honor of serving with the Rainbow division and going through four major engagements in the late war. He has been through two booms and the like number of depressions. He was in Florida when the crash came and got out of that ill-fated state at the time the boys were beginning to ask credit for hot dogs. He has played the cotton market on the long side and seen it take a nose dive. He has played it on the short side and seen it try to reach the sky. He has seen births and deaths and lived through famine and pestilence. But Fate, who has used him as a favorite plaything for so many years, still had reserved a greater trial to torture his soul. Naturally I am speaking of the individual tournament which is now history.

I am going to take a mighty oath. It will be a far more impressive oath than any drunkard took after a terrible hangover. It will be a soul-spiriting and fervent oath. An oath taken with the sincerity of a Christian plus the memory of a sinner fresh in his mind. Never, as long as my stiff fingers can hold a card, will I ever so much as think of entering an individual tournament. I had met it, a practice not only to leave Atlanta but the state of Georgia when one was staged. I make it even stronger now, state that the next time one of these Spanish inquisitions is inflicted on our deluded populace, I will yield my pen in a crusade to stop it and after that meets with failure will not only leave the city and state but the south.

Let us quickly pass over my mental tortures, which would fill a book, and go to those tranquil souls who are supposed to possess patience and politeness to the nth power. Would you ever believe that you would see the tranquil and popular Major W. H. Scraws so filled with emotion that he could hardly see the spots on the cards. This followed when his partner bid out of turn and silenced him by this act. The major could have made a small slam in spades and yet allowing himself to be allowed to play it at two mealy diamonds. Result, a cold bottom for the major. He will never be the same again.

Did you ever think that you would see the Chesterfieldian Charlie May get into a heated argument with Mrs. E. E. David?

In your wildest imagination would you ever envision the polite Al Walton becoming involved in a terrific quarrel with Mrs. Elwin Clarke. These were but some of the side lights which enlivened the occasion.

Charlie May quoted odds on the various players. He had the writer at six to one. He certainly quoted a short price. He should have quoted 100 to one and been anxious to get all bets. The most sensible person in my opinion were Mrs. J. T. Daniel, Mrs. Aline Phelan and Joe David. They stayed out of even the qualifying round. In fact they did not have the slightest desire to play.

When a person has reached that state in life where individual tournaments have no fascination for him he has reached that state where wisdom has crept into his soul.

Man Held for Florida Found To Have Pardon

William Salter, who has been held by the Atlanta police because he was wanted in Florida for being a life-term convict, has been freed because since he escaped prison in 1925 he has been granted a full pardon by the governor of Florida.

Salter was serving the life sentence for criminal assault. He escaped in 1925. In 1927 the girl who was the prosecuting witness against him made an affidavit that the charge against him was untrue. The pardon was issued but Salter never could be found to be informed of it.

He was arrested here last week and was being held for Florida authorities when they discovered that he was a free man.

Peabody, Mrs. George Black, Mrs. Lewis Hamilton and Edwin Nix, allow me to again pledge my pen and my labor to assist you in any worthy bridge undertaking you may want.

sponsor in the future. But my above mentioned friends, never mention to me again helping to stir up interest in an individual tournament. Let our beautiful friendship remain. It has stood the acid test last week. Don't let it be tested again. And now let us raise our faces toward heaven, remove our hats, if we wear them, and make a solemn vow that never so long as we can overcall one diamond with one spade will we ever attend an individual tournament. Imagine a state like Georgia prohibiting bull fights and chicken fights and yet allowing such a brutal event as an individual bridge tournament to disrupt our liberal dispositions and future hope of salvation. Amen.

Repeal of prohibition is not retroactive, and will not affect offenders who had begun sentences for its violation prior to November 6, Judge E. J. Marvin Underwood, of federal district court, ruled Wednesday in the Ervin Ellerbe case.

Ellerbe was sentenced at Tampa for violation of the prohibition law and entered the federal prison here on November 2. He asked for a writ of habeas corpus, contending that he could not further serve time for violation of a statute which had been nullified.

Judge Underwood held that recent supreme court decisions applied only to pending cases. He quoted from the decision in the Chambers and Gibson case which explained that the high court "was not dealing with cases where the final judgment was rendered prior to ratification."

Judge Underwood held that 43 pending cases involving 61 prohibition offenders be nolle prossed on the ground that they were pending cases.

Authorization to nolle pross those cases which explained that the high court "was not dealing with cases where the final judgment was rendered prior to ratification."

The charter of the city of Rome provides that it is unlawful for any official of said city to be interested either directly or indirectly in any contract with the city of Rome or any subordinate agency thereof, having for its object public improvement of the city or the expenditure of its money, and provides a penalty. The city attorney is a city official and, therefore, the contract was void and unenforceable.

The court of appeals Wednesday held that Paul H. Doyal, chairman of the state revenue commission, cannot collect $1,000 from the city of Rome for drawing a new charter for the city while he was serving as its city attorney. The Rome city council passed an ordinance which provided payment of $1,000 for the drawing of the code but it was opposed in court on the ground that the salary as city attorney paid him for the task.

Judge Underwood directed that the decision of the lower courts, the decision saying:

"The charter of the city of Rome provides that it is unlawful for any official of said city to be interested either directly or indirectly in any contract with the city of Rome or any subordinate agency thereof, having for its object public improvement of the city or the expenditure of its money, and provides a penalty. The city attorney is a city official and, therefore, the contract was void and unenforceable."

An example of a sound jump overcall made in tournament play occurred in the recent United States Bridge Association tournament in New York in the team-of-four match.

South, dealer. North and South vulnerable.

THE JUMP OVERCALL. There is a type of defensive overcall known as jump overcall. This is purely a defensive weapon. The jump overcall is what its name implies—a bid of one or more tricks more than necessary to overcall an adverse opening bid. Thus if opponents open the bidding with one club and you overcall with two spades, this is a jump overcall. The bid is not a strength-showing bid, but is made with the same purpose as that governing the simple overcall, only with the jump overcall the distribution of the hand and possible lack of honor strength appear to make imperative more drastic action. The same safety rule is followed in making a jump overcall as in making a simple overcall. When you make this bid your partner and both adversaries will appreciate the fact that it is not a showing of great strength, but of defensive weakness. Even with full knowledge of this your adversaries cannot regain the lost rounds of bidding which you have taken away from them. Your partner infers from this bid that you have a sound, playable suit, probably of great length, at which quite probably a paying sacrifice may be taken. The added protection necessary to make a jump overcall safe is usually found in the trump suit itself. Basically jump overcalls belong to the same category of bids as opening preemptive bids, but ordinarily are not as strong in showing strength as opening bids, opening three- or four-bids, because the exigencies of the situation, after opponents have opened the bidding, may suggest the wisdom of more drastic action.

W. D. Alexander Co. Opens Sale Campaign At Its Regular Spring Convention Here

Increased advertising and sales promotion, sales training and new products were outlined at the convention of the W. D. Alexander Company, distributors in this territory for General Electric kitchen appliances, which was held Wednesday. Among speakers at the meeting were, left to right, T. B. Allen, of Cleveland, southeastern district manager, electric refrigeration department, General Electric Company; E. H. Diehl, assistant to Mr. Allen, and W. D. Alexander, president of the W. D. Alexander Company.

The W. D. Alexander Co., distributor in this section for General Electric kitchen appliances, made plans for the biggest sales campaign it has waged in three years at its annual spring convention at the Piedmont hotel Wednesday. Dealers, salesmen and other representatives attended.

Optimism, which marked the convention, was summed up by W. D. Alexander, head of the distributing firm, who predicted a tremendous buying urge on the part of the public during the next six months.

"Our last year's sales were far ahead of those for the year before," he said, "despite the unfavorable business conditions at the beginning of 1933. This year, January and February have been record breakers. Now, with general conditions improving, with some ten billions of dollars in the government's spending on its national recovery program, and with the numerous evidences of increased business, we believe we are justified in launching the biggest sales drive in our history."

Increased advertising, augmented sales promotion, intensive sales training and new products were outlined at the convention. New sales ideas were presented through the medium of talking motion pictures and dramatic skits.

Representatives from national sales headquarters in Cleveland, who took part in the program, included T. B. Allen, district manager, and E. H. Diehl, assistant to Mr. Allen. Others who participated were W. D. Alexander, president; W. B. Stringham, sales manager, and L. J. Spiers, commercial manager, of the W. D. Alexander Company, and H. W. Krebs, General Electric Contract Corporation.

MAN SENTENCED FOR 1886 STABBING IS GIVEN PARDON

Harlan H. Chapman, alias Joe Smiley, was ordered freed Wednesday from a penitentiary sentence he had been serving for the alleged slaying of Alfred Reddish during a schoolyard fight nearly a half-century ago.

Governor Eugene Talmadge pardoned Chapman after petitioners for clemency said there was "serious doubt" that Chapman was the man who stabbed Reddish in the heart with a pen knife during the school term of 1886.

A the time of his arrest in the early part of 1933, Chapman said he was a native of Whitmore, Lawrence county, Kentucky, and knew nothing of the killing.

He was indicted and convicted at Reidsville, Ga., where the Reddish boy was slain when the town had the name of Greenville. His conviction of voluntary manslaughter was followed by a sentence of one of four years in prison.

On October 28, 1933, about six months after starting his sentence, Chapman escaped from the Tattall county farm, but surrendered a few days later and was transferred to the state prison farm at Milledgeville.

Relatives of the slain youth started efforts to have Chapman indicted after they told officers, a man who had moved to the town closely resembled the youth who fled from the scene of the stabbing never to be seen or heard from again.

84 IN ONE FAMILY WILL CELEBRATE 58TH ANNIVERSARY

Eighty-four people aren't usually considered a family. Ordinarily they would make up a colony or compose the population of a hamlet. In this day one and two children, the idea of four-score and four persons being members of the same family group is unique.

But it will be joyfully real to Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Seagraves, of Center Hill, when they observe their fifty-eighth wedding anniversary Friday.

For it was on that date in 1876 that Mr. Seagraves took unto himself a wife named Amanda J. Gray, who is the mother of their nine children. They were married at her home in the same community, then known as Collins district, and have lived in that vicinity since. It is there that the children and their children will gather for the celebration tomorrow night. One daughter and her family who live in Detroit will be absent.

Mr. Seagraves is the oldest citizen of Center Hill, having come to the settlement when he was still a child 69 years ago. His family includes, besides his wife and nine children, 47 grandchildren and 17 great-grandchildren, most of whom will be present for the anniversary celebration.

Bank of Crossville, today fired a bullet into his heart, causing instant death.

NANCY PAGE

Such Big Balls on Such a Simple Curtain

BY FLORENCE La GANKE

Then the curtains were looped back with a white cord finished at each end with one of these balls.

"I think I know how to make those balls, too." "That's fine, Nancy. I thought you would. I know there are two ways, one makes a rather flat pom-pom and the other makes a round ball."

Nancy hunted up her directions. Here they are. One process is shown in detail in the direction leaflet. This leaflet is obtained by following the directions at the end of the column today.

Or two circles of cardboard may be cut. Lay one on top of other and cut a hole in center of both about the size of a large fountain pen. Start the cord by inserting it through hole bringing it around cardboard and up through center hole. Continue until circles are covered with yarn like radii in circle. Repeat until cardboard is more than covered. Cut the yarn at outer edge of circles, insert an end of yarn between two circles and the strands with tight knot. Remove cardboard circles. A fluffy ball results. Leave an end of the cord used to tie the knot. This end is used to attach ball to curtain.

Detailed instructions for making "Ball Curtain Edging" may be obtained by sending three cents and a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Nancy Page in care of The Atlanta Constitution.

JOHNSON COUNTY TAXES OF $3,024 DUE GEORGIA

State Auditor Tom Wisdom Wednesday reported to Governor Talmadge that an audit of the accounts of W. J. Flanders, ordinary of Johnson county, showed that $3,024 is due the state from the county in delinquent taxes. The auditor attached a letter from Mr. Flanders saying that the sum would be paid after he had checked the audit.

Mr. Wisdom's report showed that the money had been collected in the last five years after reports had been made to the comptroller-general that the persons who owed it were insolvent and the taxes uncollectible. The auditor reported that he believed a number of counties owed the state under the same circumstances.

HUTCHINSON RENAMED BEEF CATTLE LEADER

Georgia Association Opposed to Widespread Shipping of Stock Into State.

The Georgia Beef Cattle Association, organization of which was sponsored by The Constitution and Southern Cultivator, held its annual meeting Wednesday in the Ansley hotel with a representative number of beef cattle producers in attendance.

Colonel W. B. Hutchinson, of Albany, was re-elected president and Perry Lunsford, Covington, retained as secretary-treasurer. A. W. Neely, of Waynesboro, was chosen as vice president.

The association went on record as opposed to the federal government's suggested plan of shipping dairy cattle from the congested dairying states of the northwest into the south, holding that any dairy animals brought into the south should be the small number of selected animals for the purpose of improving stock, whereas the dumping method suggested by the agricultural department would result in an influx of inferior animals, many of which might be victims of tuberculosis, contagious abortions and other diseases of such animals.

Colonel Hutchinson stated that satisfactory progress was being made in securing new members of the association, which already includes as active members President Roosevelt, Governor Talmadge, Ambassador Bingham and numerous other large producers of beef cattle in this state. Any Georgia beef cattle raiser may become an active member by mailing his application to Perry Lunsford, secretary-treasurer, Covington, Ga., accompanying it with the yearly membership fee of $3.

Westbrook PEGLER

PEGLER'S gift for satirical burlesque is probably unequalled by any American writer since the passing of Ring Lardner. He has become a personality through whom the public savors a new and fresh viewpoint. Although he first won national fame as a sports writer, his column long ago outgrew the limitations of the strictly sports field. His application of forthright common sense to Washington politics came as a revelation. Readers yelled with delight at the sureness of his touch as he punctured a lot of pretty balloons that were being tossed about during his stay at the capital. In his new column he will write about anything that he likes—or dislikes.

Guttenberger-Ilges Wedding Brilliantly Solemnized in Macon

MACON, Ga., Feb. 28.—The marriage of Miss Mary Kimbrough Guttenberger, daughter of Mrs. Curtis Nottingham Guttenberger, and John Paul Ilges Jr., of Columbus, was solemnized at a brilliant ceremony at the Macon Street Methodist church at 8:30 o'clock Wednesday evening. Bishop W. N. Ainsworth performed the ceremony in the presence of a gathering of relatives and friends representative of Georgia society.

The interior of the church was decorated effectively with palms banked before the altar and the choir loft, before which numbers of cathedral candelabra holding tall white tapers were pyramided. The striking simplicity of the arrangement made a most effective background for the pink and blue of the bride and bridesmaids.

Mrs. Monroe Ogden, organist, played a program of nuptial music as the guests assembled. For the entrance of the bride party she used the bridal chorus from "Lohengrin" and for the recessional, Mendelssohn's "Wedding March." The bridesmaids were: Misses Alfred Brumback, W. D. Anderson Jr. and Basil Hall, all of Macon, and the groomsmen were: Thomas Lambert, Henderson, Macon; Robert Lawton, W. W. Roberts, Jr., of Columbus; Robert Dismukes, Columbus; William Coffey, Birmingham, Ala.; and Henry Reeves, Columbus.

Wedding Party.
The bridesmaids, Misses Polly Williamson, Laura Nelle Anderson, Mrs. Kenan Rand, of Macon; Miss Annie Laurie McCord, of Atlanta; Miss Dorothy Ilges, of Columbus, sister of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Arthur L. Burnett Jr., of Thomson, were gowns of heavily blue chiffon, wide ruching around the neck broadening over the shoulders and narrowing as it followed the "V" decollete to the waist. Over one shoulder was a spray of tiny pink gardenias inside the ruching. Double ruffles of chiffon starting at the waist followed a panel in the back of the skirt, which swept into a train. They wore slippers dyed to match their gowns and carried bouquets of deep pink roses sprayed with pink sweet peas.

The matron of honor, Mrs. Alfred Brumback, sister of the bride, wore a gown of cameo pink chiffon, made in the style of the maid's gowns. Her slippers were pink crepe and she carried a bouquet of pale pink roses, sprayed with lavender sweet peas.

Beautiful Bride.
The bride entered with her brother, B. F. Guttenberger, who gave her in marriage. She wore a gown of ivory satin, her mother's wedding gown which was also worn a few years ago by her sister, Mrs. Brumback. She was veiled with a long, round neckline and also made a panel in the waist. The long, tight sleeves were of satin and lace. Her veil was of princess lace with tulle, fastened cap shape to her hair and caught around the back with a garland of orange blossoms caught with clusters of white ribbons.

At each side, she wore white satin slippers and carried a round bouquet of lilies of the valley. Immediately following the ceremony at the church, the bride's mother, Mrs. Guttenberger, gave a small reception at her home on Buford place for the bride party and out-of-town guests. Receiving guests, Mrs. Guttenberger were her son, B. F. Guttenberger, the bride and bridesmaids, members of the bride party, Mrs. Ben Kimbrough, the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Guttenberger were a gown of white chiffon, short draped, fastened with rhinestones and a spray of valley lilies. Mrs. Ilges wore a gown of ashen of roses crepe and a bouquet of orchids. Mrs. Kimbrough wore black chiffon and a cluster of orchids. Mrs. Howell Hollis, of Columbus, aunt of the bridegroom, wore a green lace gown.

Effective Decorations.
Through the lower floor of the Guttenberger home quantities of pink roses were arranged and in the dining room the bride's table, overlaid with a lace cloth, was centered with the wedding cake, three-tiered, embossed with lilies of the valley and surrounded by a tiny bride and bridesmaid. At each end of the table crystal cornucopia held white roses and lilies of the valley and crystal compots held white roses and lilies. Crystal candlesticks held tall white tapers. Assisting in entertaining the guests were Miss Lelia Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Sanders Walker, Mr. and Mrs. P. T. Anderson Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Dunwoody, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Warden and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kingman.

During the evening the bride and groom left for a wedding trip, the destination of which was not revealed. For traveling the bride wore an ensemble of gray, wool coat over a printed crepe dress in which red predominated in the pattern on a gray background. Her hat was of gray felt, her slippers and gloves gray families.

Children's Exhibit Opens at High Museum of Art

An interesting exhibition of drawing, modeling, soap carving and block printing by the children of the junior art classes of the High Museum is now on view in the auditorium gallery of the museum. A tea and preview opened the exhibition and the special guests of the occasion were the parents of the students of the junior classes.

The work of seven classes of students between the ages of 6 and 17 is included in this show. The influence of a trip to the Candler zoo by the junior school last fall can be seen in the many drawings and carvings of animals. The work of the younger children is especially spontaneous and uncolored.

The teachers of the junior school, Miss Louise Ferguson, Claude Herndon, Mrs. Nell Starr, Misses Jean Bathhouse, Frances Wilson, Emerine Jackson and Christine Lucy, are under the supervision this year of Mrs. Richard W. Smith, assisted by Mrs. Joseph H. Hurl, of Decatur.

Mr. Skidmore, director of the museum, urges all patrons of the school and all who are interested in children's work to visit this exhibition. Information concerning these classes may be obtained by telephoning the High Museum, Hemlock 3200.

This exhibition will be on view through Sunday, March 4. The museum is open daily from 9 until 5 o'clock, and on Sunday afternoon from 2 until 5 o'clock. The public is invited.

Before Baby Comes
Turn the months of waiting into ease and comfort. You can now avoid unnecessary pain and suffering by preparing your body for that dear baby's coming. A massage method, called Mother's Friend, helps to relieve and prevent such abdominal tissue breaks... dry skin... caked breasts... after delivery. It loosens the germ-laden plug, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such a relief in severe coughs. Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily
Mixed at Home
No Cooking! No Work! Real Saving!
You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle. Take a pint bottle, pour 2½ cups of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This gives you four times as much cough medicine for your money, and it's a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

CUT-WORK LINES—5007. Every smart housewife longs to have cut-work lines. The richness of the design, the durability of this embroidery, make its popularity well-deserved. But to the needlewoman, the most interesting feature of cut-work is that it is easy to do—even a beginner can do it and feel satisfied with the result, especially when she makes a variety of illustrations of the stitches and detailed directions for doing it. These motifs are appropriate for a great variety of linens, from tiny sachets or guest towels, through to handsome cloths.

Former Atlantan Extols Efforts Of Local Better Films Group

RICHMOND, Va., Feb. 28.—Atlanta, which has the second oldest Better Film Committee in the United States, has solved the problem of securing good "movies" for its theaters and discouraging salacious or "silly" shows without resorting to censorship, of which it disapproves. How this has been done through the work of its Better Films Committee, which has gained nationwide publicity and is regarded as a model, was outlined yesterday by Mrs. Newton Wing, former president of the committee, in an interview here.

The Atlanta Better Films Committee was organized in 1921 and its primary purpose was to put on some sort of selected weekly program for the children of the city, but it soon included in its scope of activity every phase of film subjects. The movement was launched by the Atlanta Woman's Club, but from its beginning, had men as well as women among its sponsors and soon came to represent practically all the men's and women's organizations of the city, as well as most of the church groups. Mrs. Wing, a charter member of the committee, was named chairman of the children's Saturday morning matinee committee and later elected president of the Better Films Committee, which office she held for five years.

Children's Matinees. The first effort of the committee was the sponsoring of the Saturday matinees for children, which are more largely attended than any in the United States, with 2,500 to 3,000 children and young people attending every performance. These programs include a feature picture, a comedy, an educational film and prolog. The schools co-operate in procuring the educational films. The shows are so good that they make a strong appeal to boys and girls of high school age and even adults, Mrs. Wing said.

The Better Films Committee of Atlanta reviews every first-run picture that comes to the city. Its members, made up of representatives from the City Federation of Women's Clubs, the men's civic clubs, the churches and other groups have two classes each month to train them in considering and grading pictures.

The pictures are graded by the committee on quality, and suitability for various groups, mature, general, high school or juvenile. These gradings are published in the newspapers of the city. The pictures of which the committee disapproves are ignored in their reports, which they have found far more effective in discouraging bringing such pictures to the city than any other means.

The best pictures are sponsored by the committee, which gives attendance parties for their initial runs and through its telephone department communicates its recommendation to every organized group in the city, which in turn notifies others. The work of the committee has the whole-hearted support and appreciation of the theater managers, who have proven themselves ready to co-operate in every way.

Co-operation Needed. The Atlanta committee co-operates with the drama league, the art committee and other educational and cultural groups of the city and also receives strong support from the Daughters of the American Revolution, the United Daughters of the Confederacy and similar organizations.

Mrs. Wing, with her husband and her son, who is a student at the University of Richmond, came to Richmond last June and lives at 1003 Edgemoor road. She is known as a national authority on motion pictures and was one of Atlanta's most active clubwomen during her long residence in that city.

The principal aims of the Better Films Committee are to teach the public to appreciate the best in pictures, create a market for these pictures, and provide weekly programs for children and young people that will instill in them an appreciation of the best in this modern art. Mrs. Wing says. She feels that this method, rather than the banning or censoring of pictures offers the solution of the problem that has become of increasing interest to the women of America.

Mrs. Roosevelt Gives Radio Broadcast For Camp Fire Girls

Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, chairman of the Camp Fire Girls' advisory council, will broadcast a birthday message to that organization, talking on "Hobbies for Girls," this afternoon from 3:30 to 3:45 o'clock over the Columbia network.

In speaking of hobbies, the project around which Camp Fire Girls' activities have centered this year, Mrs. Roosevelt says: "Every girl should begin as young as possible to build up a variety of hobbies, hobbies which can fill quiet hours or which can take her out into the open air. To some of us, that hobby is cooking, or knitting, or pottery or writing. But that we should develop every possible avenue to one who is familiar with the lives of busy, happy people can say."

Mrs. Roosevelt's talk, which will carry the subject further, showing the effect of a hobby on the development of a personality, will come from a reception given in her honor in New York city by members of the New York and national boards of Camp Fire Girls. Mrs. Roosevelt will be introduced by a prominent member of Camp Fire, and Madam Frances Alda will sing a Camp Fire song. An important feature of the afternoon will be the announcement of the Camp Fire Girls' Eleanor Roosevelt birthday cake.

The nature of the cake, which is Mrs. Roosevelt's favorite, will be a surprise until revealed over the air, when it will set the style for the Camp Fire Girls' birthday cakes to be served at their parties throughout the country. Mrs. Roosevelt will cut the cake, thereby opening the celebration of the Camp Fire Girls' birthday month.

In connection with the birthday project, "Hobbies," an exhibit will be in one of Davidson-Faxon's front windows March 1-3, showing different treatments of interesting hobbies.

Tech, Tech High and Other Amateur Boxers Entered In Contests at Fort Benning.

By Ralph McGill.

Mr. Mike Chambers, his Swedish blond hair neatly parted, was tossing some bandages, iodine, vaseline, collodion and like articles of healing, into a bag at the Tech training quarters Tuesday.

He was yelling for his slashers to rally around and get ready for the trip. Mike Chambers, of Tech, is to referee the Southeastern amateur boxing championships at Fort Benning, the matches beginning today and concluding Saturday evening.

A. A. U. competition, will be seconded by Chambers.

And Tech's second entry, Horace Scordas, of Savannah, will fight in the flyweight class. He weighs 105 pounds.

WELL REPRESENTED.

Atlanta is to be well represented by entries from the Tech High boxing team, also from other amateur organizations.

Chambers believes both the Tech entries will be able to win in their divisions. Tech has no boxing team, but has a few good fighters, although when several minor sports were dropped from the schedule. A number of the boys, however, have kept up their training.

Chambers, who returned Monday from Yale, where he went at the invitation of the Yale officials to confer with them on the matter, is expected to remain at Tech, although he has not made any announcement.

Activity of the boxers was about the same during the week.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE No. 154

As Zveri's column took up the march the following morning the spirits of all had risen to an appreciable degree. The blacks had not forgotten the grim warning that had sped out of the night, but they were a race whose spirits soon rebounded from depression.

The leaders were anxious to reach their goal to complete the plan. Zveri believed that his dream of empire hinged upon it. Lyvich was happy in the thought that the success of the expedition would cause tremendous turmoil, and through it he might become a wealthy hero.

Romero and Mori wanted to have it over for entirely different reasons. They had lost all confidence in the sincerity of Zveri. The two men continued on the expedition because they felt they could not successfully leave until the party returned to the base camp.

The march had continued for an hour when a black scout, leading the column, halted suddenly. "Look!" he said to Kitembo, who was just behind him. The chief stepped to the warrior's side, and there before him in the trail, sticking in the earth, was an arrow!

Retail Merchants Protest Proposed City Assessment

Committee Told by Mayor and Tax Group They Will Receive Fair and Sympathetic Treatment.

Suggesting a revised scale for assessment of intangible and tangible properties to bring in as much if not more revenue than is produced at the present time, officials of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association Wednesday filed formal protest against a proposed increase of $10,000,000 in assessments for the year against merchants.

Those appearing pledged full cooperation with city officials in evolving any equitable and fair taxing program, cited the fact that they wished to pay their proportionate share of the expense of government, but asked that a study be made of merchandising conditions in Atlanta and insisted that they not be taxed on "a theory that our stocks are worth more than formerly."

Led by Tom C. Dickson, president; James P. Allen, 1933 president; Frank H. Neely and Edgar Chambers, former presidents, and L. L. Austin, secretary, the group presented their case to the tax committee, of which Councilman Max M. Cuba is chairman. Mayor James L. Key sat in the meeting.

The tax group decided that tax assessors and a special committee from the merchants will attempt to compose any differences which may exist, but the mayor and committee members pledged the merchants that they would receive sympathetic and fair treatment at the hands of the city.

Neely pointed out that 400 members of the association have been paying taxes out of capital, that the merchants have lost rather than made money, that installment accounts are much more hazardous than might be expected by the layman, that accounts receivable cannot be accepted at face value and that the merchants are ready to co-operate with the municipality in revising the tax system in order that all persons shall bear their pro rata share of the expense of government.

In answer to a question by Key, Neely said that the scale of taxation formerly in effect in relation to the assessments made against merchants the meeting of the Laymen's League of Atlanta at 6 o'clock tonight at St. Luke's tea room on Peachtree street. The league, of which Francis E. Kamper is acting chairman, is sponsoring united Lenten services each Sunday night at St. Luke's church, with Dean Raimundo de Ovies, of St. Philip's, scheduled to preach next Sunday night.

had been eliminated, and that the association members desired that some uniform scale be restored.

"Facts fail to bear out the theory that merchants' stocks will increase $10,000,000 this year or anything near that figure," Neely said. "We want a sliding scale of assessment as we had in the past so we may know what to expect."

"I do not see why you should be excited. You merely pay on what you have in stock," Councilman Frank Wilson said.

"We are excited because there is no scale," Neely replied. "We are for the government and want to co-operate."

"The only trouble I had with the budget commission was in holding them down," Key replied. "You are not for all these birds over here, are you?"

"I mean the city government as a whole," Neely said.

Allen pointed out that some equitable rate should be decided on relative to fixture assessment.

"I sold fixtures which cost $80,000 for $2,000 a few months ago," Allen said.

"I want to congratulate you," Neely countered. "Fixtures are not worth much except to the store using them."

Joe C. Little, senior tax assessor, agreed to take up the entire matter with the merchants "either individually or collectively" and the committee of merchants agreed to establish a contact committee.

Little also expressed the belief that the merchants were unduly alarmed about the entire matter.

Aid of merchants in mapping a program for revision of the city charter is expected to be solicited by Alderman G. Everett Millican, author of the measure to set up a committee of 18 from council to study the matter especially as relating to financial matters. Millican probably will be chairman of the committee.

Following is the text of a resolution presented to the tax committee and the mayor by the merchants' group. It is signed by J. P. Allen, who was the 1933 president of the association, and remained in office until Dickson was inducted.

MERCHANTS' RESOLUTION.
Whereas, the budget commission of the city of Atlanta, in an article accredited to said commission, in an Atlanta paper of November 25, 1933, has presumed to anticipate additional revenues from various sources for the year 1934, in its endeavor to balance the budget for the said year, and

Whereas, said budget commission has been represented as presuming to anticipate one hundred and fifty thousand ($150,000) dollars from general taxes, on the theory that merchandise stocks of Atlanta merchants would increase ten million ($10,000,000) dollars during 1934, "because inflation of money, the general increase in commodity prices and the natural increase in such merchandise and stocks," and

Whereas, the representatives of the membership of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, believe said budget commission has acted according to its best judgment, based on theory, and is in no wise desirous of working an undue or unjust hardship on any group of taxpayers, and

Whereas, we fully realize that sufficient income should be available to meet such reasonable budget as may be adopted by said budget commission, for the proper care of our city institutions and each employee thereof, and

Whereas, we are in full accord with the high motives and purposes of said commission, and the city officials, to maintain the city government and every department thereof, on the highest possible plane consistent with reasonable and fair taxation, at all times, and

Whereas, it is our sincere desire that all city employees be paid salaries and wages commensurate with services rendered at all times, thereby maintaining the highest possible standard of living and enabling said employees to make their individual and collective contribution to the life and growth of the city through an increased purchasing power, which brings as a natural consequence, increased, taxable properties, wages and merchandise, and

Whereas, we, the representatives of the membership of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association are always willing to co-operate wholeheartedly with our city officials, in any program they may initiate, provided said program is sound and logical and treats fairly with an interest, whether large or small, and is designed to promote harmony among all classes, and

Whereas, the representatives of probably the largest taxpayers on the city districts, are not in accord with the expressed theory of said budget commission in respect to their theory on the potential increase in values of merchandise stocks for the year 1934, and

Whereas, there is no basis of fact existing at this time which will or could justify such a theory, according to our actual experience or visualization of the immediate future, it being a fact that while business in general may have shown slight improvement in certain lines, stock prices are lower and will likely remain so by virtue of improved merchandising methods which have been forced upon many merchants during the last three years, and

Whereas, the retail merchants of Atlanta have always been loyal as taxpayers, standing by the city government, as good citizens and had ones, alike, paying their taxes, even in times of depression, and

Whereas, we have always found our city officials to be honest and conscientious in the discharge of their duties, never desirous to be unfair to the taxpayers, whether large or small, but always anxious to raise the revenue for the city government for said year, and

Whereas, it is our opinion that the imposition of additional taxes on the merchants of Atlanta for 1934 would work a distinct hardship on the most of them, and would be unfair and unwarranted as a means of raising additional revenue for maintaining our city government for said year, and

Whereas, we are of the further opinion that the tax system of the city of Atlanta is such as to cause many to evade or misrepresent their civic duties as taxpayers, said system having long since proven faulty and ineffective in producing the needed income for the progressive maintenance of our government, therefore

Resolved, that we, the representatives of the majority of the retail merchants of Atlanta first enter our objection to the alleged anticipated income from the merchants of Atlanta, said income being based on the "theory" of increased stocks of merchandise, inflation of money and general increase in commodity prices, because such a theory is a matter of exaggerated thought or misinformation—

Second—That we are in full accord with devising fair ways and means for the purpose of raising such additional revenue as the budget, after careful consideration and final adoption, may require—

Third—That we honestly believe the time is here when a new basis for making tax returns should be inaugurated; one which will produce as much, and quite probably more income than heretofore, and in addition thereto, such a basis will unquestionably bring to the surface, for taxable purposes, property, both real and personal, which have been in hiding, due to the present antiquated method of making returns, and the embarrassment such system brings upon good citizens—

Fourth—Approximately the following basis of making returns is hereby proposed, with the sincere hope that the city authorities will carefully weigh the possibilities in such a basis, to-wit:—

Stocks, bonds, notes, mortgages and money, 10 per cent market value.

Merchandise, at market value, 25 per cent market value.

Accounts receivable of all kinds, 10 per cent book value.

Machinery, equipment, furnishings and fixtures, 25 per cent book value.

Trucks and commercial cars, first two years, 25 per cent purchase price.

Trucks and commercial cars, over 2 years, 5 per cent purchase price.

Fifth—That the above proposed schedule of tax return basis will, if properly and consistently administered by the tax collectors, be a big boon to the income of the city and produce results which will be astounding, provided

Further, that under this proposed basis, each taxpayer is required to make his or her return under a solemn oath and made to understand that false returns will not be tolerated by the city officials whose duties it may be to enforce the laws pertaining to such matters—

Be it further resolved, That the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association put itself on record, through its board of directors, as being in thorough sympathy with an honest but ineffectual taxing system, which will preserve the sanctity of the people at large and at the same time produce the income necessary to carry on the functions of the city government in a manner that will reflect credit upon the officials of said government at all times, and upon the body politic.

Adopted unanimously by the board of directors of the Atlanta Retail Merchants' Association, duly assembled this third day of January, 1934.

J. P. ALLEN, President.
L. L. AUSTIN, Secretary.

Railroad Earnings Show Big Increase

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—(P)—The first 56 railroads to report January earnings had net operating income of $20,639,000 compared with $7,110,000 in the same month a year ago, an increase of 190 per cent. In January, 1932, the same roads reported net operating income of only $6,708,000. In December, 1933, the roads reported $28,972,000, an increase of nearly 10 per cent over the $24,411,000 reported in the same month in 1932.

Whereas, there is no basis of fact existing at this time which will or could justify such a theory, according to our actual experience or visualization of the immediate future, it being a fact that while business in general may have shown slight improvement in certain lines, stock prices are lower and will likely remain so by virtue of improved merchandising methods which have been forced upon many merchants during the last three years, and

DOUMERGUE LOSES IN TWO DECISIONS

Socialists Defeat Premier on Move To Confer Dictatorial Powers.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—(P)—Two moves to prevent Premier Gaston Doumergue from obtaining new dictatorial powers were made in the chamber of deputies today.

Socialist opposition sent back to committee a plan to confer on the premier authority to change tariffs by decree in the same manner as he is now making governmental economic moves.

The chamber then reinstated a tax of 10 per cent on the wages of foreigners, once rejected by the senate on the ground that it conflicts with treaties.

As the chamber sought to curb Doumergue's authority, two former ministers were called as witnesses by the Bayonne court investigating the Stavisky pawnshop scandal which toppled two governments.

Albert Daladier, minister of colonies at the time of the scandal, who resigned because of public indignation, and Julien Durand, minister of commerce in the Paul Boncour cabinet, were cited to appear before the court.

The chamber's action today marked the first successful opposition mustered against the 71-year-old veteran since he took office amid the excitement of recent riots.

Political observers attributed the action to a desire by certain groups in the chamber to halt further accumulation of dictatorial powers. Actually, Premier Doumergue exercises a dictatorship of sorts because President Lebrun has promised him he can dissolve parliament when he wishes and has authority to cut expenses as he sees fit.
